

Cyber Security Liability Protection

An Affordable Program with Choices for Every Need

Do you work with client's computers? If you do, consider adding cyber security liability protection.

Data privacy laws enacted by many states require companies to protect personal information and impose notification requirements, as well as possible fines in the event this information is not secured by the company responsible for the information.

While you may have controls in place to safeguard non-public personal information, an improper dissemination of non-public personal information can occur. The resulting breach/violation of a data privacy law can leave you with a host of expenses including, for example:

- Costs to notify affected individuals
- Investigation expenses to determine the cause of the breach
- Crisis management fees to minimize the potential harm to the company's reputation
- Credit monitoring expenses
- Data privacy law fines/penalties

These expenses are NOT typically covered in a traditional general liability policy. That is why we are offering this protection specifically to professional organizers whose focus involves computer-related activities. This new policy extension will add coverage for:

Security Event Costs	$200,000
Network Security and Privacy Liability*	$1,000,000
Employee Privacy Liability	$1,000,000
Customer Notification Expenses	$100,000
Public Relations Expenses	$100,000

Proper security MUST be in place to qualify for coverage – see application.*

Are you concerned? Are you vulnerable? Please contact us (kgiarrano@inspartners.com) and ask for our Cyber Security application. We will submit your completed application to determine your cost for this important extension of protection.
